

Powerful Protein

Several studies have identified protein as the key nutrient for muscle and bone health as we age into late adulthood. To stay living independently you need to maintain muscle mass and strength. As you age it is harder to maintain the muscle mass you have, and you actually need MORE protein than when you were younger. Besides maintaining your muscle mass, protein helps with maintaining your immune system to fight off becoming sick, it also helps carry and store nutrients, and helps build up and break down nutrients. The newer recommendations call for seniors to eat between 25 to 30 grams of protein in each meal. A good recommendation is to eat your protein foods first in your meal.

Protein is found in many foods, but some have more than others. High protein foods come from animals from meat, dairy, and eggs. Try to eat meat that is lower in fat. Lean ground meats include beef with a lower percentage of fat content. Turkey or chicken without the skin. Fish or shellfish and eggs. Try to grill or bake to keep the fat content low or drain off the fat after cooking. Each one ounce serving of meat, or one egg provide about 7 grams of protein so a regular size hamburger would provide you with about 21 grams.

Dairy includes milk, cheese, cottage cheese and yogurt. Same as the meat, try to choose lower fat options. A serving from this group provides be-

For those older adults that can't consume milk, purchase one of the many dairy alternative milks; look for one that is higher in protein to help meet your needs.

Plant based high protein foods include nut butters, whole nuts, seeds, beans, peas, lentils, and tofu. Nuts include healthy fats known to help with lowering heart disease. Beans and lentils include a good dose of fiber, B vitamins, potassium, and iron. Each ½ cup serving of beans can provide you with about 7 grams of protein. The serving size of nuts is on a smaller size of ¼ cup but don't let that fool you, that amount can provide about 7 grams of protein.

Here are some tips to add extra protein to meals and snacks:

- *Add beef or chicken to soups, canned spaghetti sauce or pasta dishes
- *Have cottage cheese with fruit
- *Put nuts or beans in your salad
- *Put peanut butter on crackers, bread, waffles or carrots and celery sticks
- *Mix hard boiled eggs with tuna or a salad
- *Have a Greek yogurt with nuts sprinkled on top or have a Greek yogurt smoothy
- *Canned fish with crackers
